

SUDDEN DEATH TAKES JUSTICE G. C. BARRETT

Noted Jurist Dies at His Summer Home in Saratoga.

LONG CAREER ON BENCH

First Came Into Public Prominence as an Opponent of Notorious Tweed Ring.

Former Justice George Barrett, of the Supreme Court, died to-day.

Justice Barrett died in Saratoga, and the various branches of the Supreme Court here adjourned as soon as the news was received.

The Justice had been in failing health for nearly three years, but his death was unexpected. He went to his summer cottage at No. 106 South Broadway, Saratoga, early in the week.

George C. Barrett was the most widely known man on the Supreme Court Bench. He was one of the advisory members of the Committee of Seventy during the famous fight against the Tweed ring and the first of those to aid in purifying the higher courts of New York.

He was an Irishman, having been born in Dublin on July 23, 1833. His father died when the boy was twelve years old, and he was brought to this city to be educated. He was graduated from the Columbia Grammar School, and when a young man took up literary work. At one time he decided to become an actor. His first appearance, however, was his last, and he took up the study of law.

Long Service on Bench.
His progress was rapid, and in 1861 he was elected a Justice of the Sixth Judicial District. In 1867 he was promoted to the Court of Common Pleas. It was he who first spoke at Cooper Union denouncing the Tweed regime and who put through the injunction which resulted in the selection of the late Andrew H. Green as Comptroller.

In 1871 he was nominated for Justice of the Supreme Court and elected by a majority of 4,000 votes. He was re-elected without opposition. He presided at the trials of Boodie Aldermen Jaekins and O'Neill and of Jacob Schiff.

He tried Sheriff James B. Flack, whose fraudulent divorce was exposed by the World, and a long line of other famous cases.

Justice Barrett retired last winter under the law providing for a $10,000 salary to retired Justices as official referees, and Edward C. Clinch was appointed in his place.

Justice Vernon M. Davis, who as an Assistant District Attorney prosecuted criminals before Justice Barrett, in adjourning his court said:

"It needs no words of mine to those who feel for the distinguished life and services of that great jurist. In view of those services to this community as a Justice of this court it seems but proper that out of respect to his memory this court do adjourn."

Praised by Justices.
Justice Amend said, granting the motion of A. C. Benedict, seconded by Carlisle Norwood, to adjourn:

"This court is adjourned for the day out of respect to the memory of Justice Barrett, who was on the bench for upward of thirty-five years, and during all that time rendered service of the highest character."

In Justice Bischoff's part William O. Campbell moved an adjournment in a ten word eulogy of Justice Barrett and Frederick C. Tanner seconded it. Justice Bischoff said:

"I sincerely join in the expressions of the bar of respect at the demise of one who honored the bench of this State for thirty-five years, and during all that time rendered service of the highest character."

Justice Clinch in adjourning his court said that he remembered Justice Barrett as a young man when he first became a member of the bar.

"Long acquaintance ripened into firm friendship and I learned to look up to and respect Justice Barrett as an upright man, an able jurist and a fearless judge, courteous and conspicuously able in all his public work."

Justice Truax undertook no further eulogy than to say that "the thirty-five years' service of Justice Barrett on the bench, as a District Justice, a Judge of the old Court of Common Pleas and latterly the Supreme Court, was a record of the highest character, deserving of the respect of the people."

Was Upright Judge.
Justice Newburger said:

"Justice Barrett was a magnificent Judge, an upright and honorable man. It is fitting that we who have profited by his labors and his teachings pay him the respect of a cessation of the business of the day. The clerk will enter on the minutes that this court is adjourned for the day out of respect to the memory of Justice George C. Barrett."

Justice Giegerich was much affected as he said:

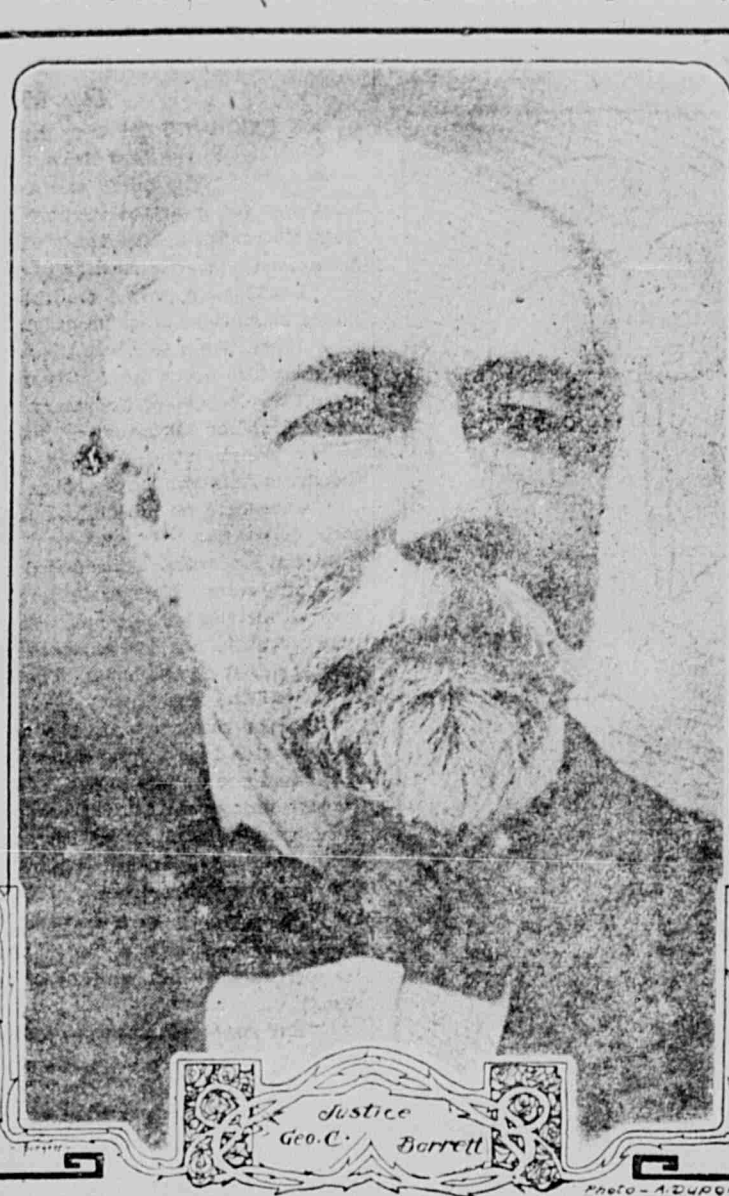

"I have learned with profound sorrow of the death of Justice Barrett. The suddenness of the announcement has brought such a shock as to make it almost impossible to express that deep sense of sorrow which was principally in the mind of the people. Justice Barrett was one of the great judges that ever sat upon the bench, learned in the law and versed in literature. His death will be keenly felt by bench and bar and by the people."

GAS-STOVE OVEN AS MEANS OF SUICIDE.

Barthold Klein's Awkward Attempt Frustrated by His Wife.

Barthold Klein, of No. 69 Manhattan avenue, Williamsburg, turned on all the jets of his kitchen gas-stove to-day and struck his head in the oven. The odor of gas aroused his wife, and Klein was saved from death. When he feels better he will have to explain his desire to a police magistrate and later to Mrs. Klein.

PANIC ON STEAMERS IN NIGHT CRASH

But Passengers on Line to Maine Escape and Are Safely Landed.

PORTLAND, Maine, June 7.—The Eastern Steamship Company's steamers City of Bangor and City of Rockland, bound in opposite directions between Bangor and Boston with passengers, were in collision twenty miles east of this city early to-day.

The City of Bangor, which left Bangor last evening, was considerably damaged but proceeded to this port, a distance of forty-five miles.

The City of Rockland, which was seriously harmed, continued on her way to Bangor.

Both steamers carried passengers, but no one on board of either boat was injured. There was considerable excitement, but reports by officers who made immediate examination of each craft reassured the people.

The City of Rockland left Boston for Bangor last evening at about 5 o'clock, and the City of Bangor started from Bangor at 1 P. M. bound west. She touched at Rockland and then headed for Portland. The east and west bound steamers of the line usually speak each other in the night.

The collision occurred near the light house just to the eastward of Boothbay Harbor, but on account of the fog last night they met just off Monhegan, and in spite of precautions observed on both vessels the City of Bangor struck the City of Rockland head on near the after gangway on the port side.

Officers on both steamers quickly ascertained that neither was in danger.

The Bangors stem was twisted and considerably fractured, but she was otherwise only slightly damaged. The City of Rockland had lost her bow and sailings carried away and several staterooms broken in. It was apparent that both could make port for which they were bound and course was laid accordingly.

The Eastern Steamship Company's steamer City of Bangor, which left Boston at 1 P. M., happened to arrive on the scene shortly after the collision and she accompanied the Bangor into Portland.

The collision occurred not long after night and the deckhands say that there was no evidence that the vessels were in the neighborhood of each other until they were bound together.

After the City of Bangor had arrived here her freight was transferred to the City of Rockland, and the latter vessel was towed to Portland. Some of the passengers also took the City of Bangor while others proceeded to Boston by train.

Fire at No. 191 Grand street to-day caused the clerk in the T. Planink of J. Deschamps to hurriedly throw about $10,000, much of it in small coin, into the safe. No money was lost in the quick change, and the fire was extinguished with a loss of about $50.

What Hunyadi Janos Is.

The Origin of the Name

In Hungary, in the 15th century, there lived a wonderful man—a great soldier and wise statesman—who was principally instrumental in driving back the "Unbearable Turk" and keeping him out of Hungary at the period when bands of these marauders were ravaging most of Europe.

By his victories in war and peace this man endeavored himself to the people and gained a great and permanent place in the nation's history. His name was HUNYADI JANOS, or John Hunyadi, as it would be in English.

In the present day, in the affectionate hearts of all Hungarians, he holds the place of one of their greatest national heroes. It is strange, then, that they should wish to give this name to one of their most wonderful natural products—the famous Mineral Laxative Water from the Springs of Budapest.

The laxative water was principally in the hands of a man who was a world-wide reputation greater even than that enjoyed by old John Hunyadi. A bottle costs but a trifle and contains many good things. One dose gives a thorough cleansing of the bowels, and the bowels gently but powerfully. At all drug stores, ask for it by the full name—HUNYADI JANOS.

CORONER ARRESTED BRUTAL CONDUCTOR

Shrady Saw an Aged Man
Punched and Thrown from Moving Car.

Morris Siegel, conductor on a Third Avenue surface car, was held in $500 to-day for further examination to-morrow on what Magistrate Baker, in the Harlem Police Court, termed "a brutal attack on an aged and defenseless man."

George Baner, sixty years old, is secretary of a lodge, and, after a late meeting last night, was on his way to his home, No. 233 West One Hundred and Thirty-third street, on Siegel's car. There was only one other passenger.

At One Hundred and Twenty-fifth street Baner asked the conductor for a transfer and was refused. At One Hundred and Twenty-sixth street Baner, who had been unable to get Siegel to stop the car for him to alight, pulled the bell cord.

That angered the conductor, and as he signalled the motorman not to stop he ran on the running-board to where Baner sat. In police court to-day Baner and the other passenger said Siegel struck Baner in the face and hurled him from the car. Baner landed on his head and was severely injured.

Then the other passenger grabbed Siegel, showed him a large gold watch and informed him that he was under arrest. The man was Coroner Shrady. He held the conductor until the police came and Siegel was locked up.

Baner's scalp wound was treated by Dr. Berlinger of the Harlem Hospital, and Coroner Shrady sent him home in a carriage.

In court to-day Magistrate Baker gave Siegel until to-morrow afternoon to present his defense. He was represented by the company's counsel.

Harle Must Name Co-respondent.
PITTSBURGH, June 7.—Augusta Harle has been ordered by the court to name the co-respondent with whom she alleges his wife visited the Lincoln Hotel in this city. If he complies with the order it is said it will create a social sensation, which will even eclipse that caused when Harle named his negro coachman as co-respondent. The name must be made public or Harle must drop his divorce suit.

stove polish factory of Salvatore Gracino. Gracino reached his shop to find flames in a gasoline receptacle. With a blanket he endeavored to extinguish the blaze and was burned about the hands and face.

An alarm was turned in and the firemen had little difficulty in extinguishing the flames.

800 Journeyman Tailored U. S. True Blue Serge Suits, $13.50

This is the most important serge news we've published this season. As previously announced, when the serge season opened we had on contract order only 1,500 U. S. True Blue Serge Suits to sell at $13.50—all that we could possibly contract for to sell at that price. They were almost all sold, and we were wondering how we could avoid disappointing our customers (for once a man wears U. S. True Blue and comes back for another he won't take "something just as good"). Through a clerical mistake in the manufacturing department of the great tailoring institution that makes them for us, we find we have 800 more suits coming to us under old terms. We could sell them at considerably higher prices, but that's not the Brill way.

They're here at $13.50. Now's the chance for 800 lucky men. Come to-day, to-morrow. Don't risk waiting until Saturday.

U. S. True Blue Serge Suits are the best value in America under $20. Journeyman tailored—have hand-worked buttonholes, hand-felled collars and lapels, hand-built shoulders and fronts—and that's why they're so good. WANTED NOT to fade, NOT to lose shape, NOT to pull out at seams, NOT to cockle at edges, NOT to wear shiny readily. Sizes 34 to 52. Eight models—distinctly new models. To be had only at $13.50 Brills'.
